'Employment and Unemployment in Scotland'

Speaker: Professor David (Danny) Blanchflower with Professor David Bell

Chair: Professor Anton Muscatelli

Venue: The Royal Society of Edinburgh

Professor Blanchflower spoke for the Institute some 3 years ago, and nobody who was present will have forgotten his clear understanding of the negative risks faced by the UK economy. Since then he has been highly visible across the media and highly influential in the UK and international policy debate. Danny Blanchflower has worked closely with David Bell of Stirling University on the topic of employment and unemployment in Scotland and we really look forward to his insightful analysis of labour market prospects and priorities, in the context of declines in public expenditure and very slow economic growth. We are most grateful to our friends at SIRE for their support of this seminar.
